[In the claim of Mrs. Otway Cave, in 1838, before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords for the termination in her favour of the abeyance of the Barony of Bray, as representing Elizabeth, second daughter and coheir of Edmund, first Lord Bray, Robert Disney Thorp was proved to be the heir general of Anne, the eldest daughter and coheir of Lord Bray, owing to the marriage of his great-grandfather William Thorp, Gentleman, of Nottingham, with Frances, only d. and eventual heir of Sir William Boothby, Bart., of Ashbourne Hall, in the county of Derby, whose mother, the Honourable Hill Brooke, was grand-niece and heir of Henry, last Lord Cobham, and great-great-granddaughter and heir of Anne Bray, wife of George Brooke, Lord Cobham. Robert Disney Thorp was thus heir general of the Barony of Cobham of Kent, as well as of Anne, eldest daughter and coheir of Edmund Lord Bray. Through the marriage of the Honourable Hill Brooke's grandfather George Brooke, who was attainted of high treason and beheaded in 1605, with the Honourable Elizabeth Burgh, eldest sister and coheir of Robert, last Lord de Burgh. Mr. Robert Disney Thorp was furthermore one of the heirs general of the Barony of Burgh, and, through Burgh, of the baronies of Cobham of Sterborough and Strabolgi, and the Scotch Earldom of Athol. John William Disney Thorp is the great-grandson of John, younger brother of Robert Disney Thorp, all of whose sons died without issue, while his elder daughter and eventual co-heir Maria married General Sir Alexander Leith of Freefield and Glenkindie, in the county of Aberdeen, and left issue. Her grandson and co-heir Alexander Henry Leith was declared in 1912 a coheir of the Baronies of Cobham and Burgh, and in 1914 of the Barony of Strabolgi, and in 1916 the abeyance of the Barony of Burgh was terminated in his favour, he being summoned to the House of Lords as 5th Baron Burg, the abeyance of the Baronies of Cobham and Strabolgi being at the same time terminated in favour of his cousins Gervase Disney Alexander, now 12th Baron Cobham (vide Alexander), and Cuthbert Matthias Kenworthy, now 9th Baron Strabolgi (vide Kenworthy).]
